

Writing submission

Document: “Operation API”

Devon Apple

This writing sample is an adaptation of the REST API work that I produced at PayPal. This document illustrates the writing style and structure, with a small group of parameter tables and no critical information. The original documentation includes supplemental information and diagrams, which I opted not to emulate in this sample.

I wrote all of the content for this document sample.

The sample document is my original writing.

The content is adapted from existing work, and doesn’t map directly to an API.

This document has not received any editing attention.

The sample is fully compliant with the company style guide.

This sample illustrates a document that would be part of a larger documentation set.